Did You Know

- The Andaman Islands are home to India's only active volcano, located on Barren Island. You can even take a private charter to view it by air.
- Radhanagar Beach, located on Havelock Island, was named Asia's Best Beach by Time Magazine.
- The water in parts of Havelock is so clear, you can see up to 30 meters underwater, making it one of the best scuba diving spots in Asia.
- The Andaman & Nicobar Islands are closer to Thailand and Myanmar than to mainland India.
- Ross Island, once the British administrative capital, had its own ballroom, bakery, and printing press in the 1800s.
- Some of the tribal communities in the Andamans, like the Sentinelese, are among the last uncontacted people on Earth and remain protected by law.
- The Andaman Sea is home to over 550 species of coral, making it a paradise for divers and marine life lovers.
- The famous Natural Bridge at Neil Island is formed entirely by coral and rock, and is locally nicknamed the "Howrah Bridge."
- The Cellular Jail, known as "Kala Pani," had 693 solitary cells, each designed to isolate freedom fighters in total silence.
- Scuba diving in Havelock is available all year round, and offers a chance to spot manta rays, turtles, reef sharks, and even dugongs.
